The Eddie Award

The Eddie Award is offered annually at the National Specialty for the most creative NQ of that calendar year in the obedience ring. It is given for the most creative non-qualifying performance by a Border Terrier in the obedience ring for the year. It was named after Laurale Stern's 'Eddie', CH Luvemurs First Edition, UD,CG,TDI,TT,CGC, who never non-qualified in the obedience ring without flare and élan! It is open to any member of the BTCA doing obedience with a Border Terrier. The most creative and humorous arrangement of the AKC, UKC, or CKC obedience regulations at any level will win the Eddie Award of the year. To apply for this award, write your story in 500 words or less and send it to the Eddie Award Committee. The winning entry will be printed in The Borderline and the dog's owner will receive a fun prize related to the performance, plus a rosette. The account of the winning performance is read at the Awards Banquet, and the 'award' is given to make up for the AKC qualifying score you probably lost because your dog really wanted to get the Eddie Award instead.
